News from NSBA:

C-SPAN/Washington Journal spoke with Francisco Negron a NSBA general counsel member regarding the Federal policy on bullying. Francisco answers questions and takes comments from caller around the nation. People appear to be very split when it comes to doing something about bullying. Some people think it's a part of education and others think that kids need to be more protected. They have posted this video on www.nsba.org. USBA News:

In March 2011 the USBA office staff competed in the 2011 Winter Corporate Games. The games went on for two weeks and we participated in events like; snow sculpting, co-ed bowling, racquetball, women's bowling, table tennis, scrabble, dodgeball, scavenger hunt, and trivial pursuit. It was hard work, but we had a lot of fun together. This was a great opportunity for us to grow and become closer as a company. We got extra points for volunteering at events and the food drive. We were the smallest company to participate in the games and we always had the largest support system. We always had the biggest group of people from the opening ceremonies to the closing ceremonies. Not only were our employees there supporting every event, but our employees loved ones, as well. It is a lesson that with support and hard work, you can do anything. And because of all our hard work and support we took home the gold. We won first place overall and we are very proud. ~By: Danielle Roundy
